Dear Colleagues,

Livestock and human health are interlinked and disease prevention is one of the greatest challenges faced by veterinary as well as medical profession. Diverse infectious animal diseases have been targeted by veterinarians to decrease the morbidity and mortality in livestock. The veterinary profession, through effective and efficient veterinary services, plays crucial role in prevention of animal diseases and protection of animal health. Numerous zoonotic diseases are on focus for veterinarians to protect the human health also. Strategies to prevent such diseases for protection of livestock and human health are need of the day. Looking to importance of the issues, World Veterinary Association has declared to celebrate World Veterinary Day- 2013 on the theme of "Vaccination to prevent and protect".

We have great pleasure to invite you for one day seminar organized in collaboration with Gujarat Veterinary Association and Gujarat Veterinary Council on “Role of Veterinarians in Prevention of Diseases & Protection of Livestock and Human Health” as part of World Veterinary Day – 2013 Celebration on 27th April, 2013 at College of Veterinary Science and Animal Husbandry, Junagadh Agricultural University, Junagadh.
